Dear Mr. Verb

Just finished reading your Book Reviews in the recent Fourth Decade. For what it is worth, I believe you are right on the money. Some of the work that has come out recently is very discouraging in that there are people out there who believe this nonsense. I must also include the work of John Armstrong as I have found some serious errors in his presentation. I am not sure what has been happening as it appears to me that either the authors are not carefully researching or, in some instances, research just enough to prove their theories and toss aside the rest. Thank goodness for Hal Verb!

Best wishes
